“The region offers a unique confluence of creative and digital companies. The areas of interest cross over, from board games to video games, and our universities have courses that cross over the sector. This makes it a really interesting place to work; there’s lots of energy, new creatives, new markets, creativity and connections here.”

FOREWORD

We are so lucky to live here in our world famous cities, in our amazing market and coastal towns and in our most beautiful countryside, all rich with heritage and culture. Local people enjoy an enviable and vibrant calendar of arts events, while TV programmes made here in the West of England are celebrated right across the globe.

However, our region has been hit hard by the Covid-19 pandemic. Many people in the hospitality, tourism, retail and creative sectors have lost their incomes and jobs. Many of these people were freelancers, excluded from much government support. We are also dealing with the fallout from Brexit.

In the coming years I am determined we do much more than just survive, but go on and really thrive – to build back even better and progress far further. I want to protect and nurture our irreplaceable natural environment and ensure more local people than ever before have the opportunities to achieve their full potential. Above all, I want to put our truly great West of England region even more firmly on the map for national and international success.

Our world-class cultural and creative sectors are crucial. My £2m West of England Culture and Creative Economy Recovery Fund is nurturing our highly talented home-grown artists, composers and musicians to help ensure people get back on their feet and develop their skills.

I am proud that the West of England is attracting international investment from key international players to benefit both us and them. More than 500 businesses across the South West have been boosted directly from Netflix investment creating 1,000 jobs across the UK.

The West of England Combined Authority's recent £12m investment in the Bottle Yard Studios sends a strong, confident, and really important message to the world – that our amazing creative sector here in the West of England is thriving and growing apace. I am also supporting small businesses and freelancers with a programme of professional development and paid placements for young people.

Those who know the West of England come to love it – its super creativity and its can-do attitude enables us to take action and achieve results. This Cultural Plan will ensure even more people fall under the West of England's spell to build upon our already outstanding national and global success.

Dan Norris,
West of England Mayor

“For us, cultural inclusion is fundamental to social and economic inclusion, as without the freedom, opportunities, and space to freely express culture, heritage, and identity, true inclusion is not possible.”

INTRODUCTION

Culture is not an add-on to daily life or the economic work of the region, it is a critical support to both. The major challenges we face, regionally and globally, will be solved by creative people and the economic opportunities that follow the pandemic will be grasped by those who can see beyond the immediate and imagine a different path.

The West of England Cultural Compact is an agreement between local and regional government and Arts Council England; to engage with this strategic application of culture, the arts and creativity for the benefit of people in the area. It is the only Cultural Compact, of 20 in the first instance, to work at regional level. As such, it presents unique opportunities and challenges; it also offers a microcosm of England as a whole and any solutions we find locally will have ready application nationally.

Our early work has highlighted the cultural richness of our region, and the breadth and distinctiveness of our assets. Vibrant artist communities thrive where rents are lower and meanwhile spaces are available. The large, fixed cultural assets cluster in Bath and Bristol where population density ensures a high footfall. As a region our task is to connect and empower these assets and to focus a proportion of their energies towards the benefit of the region and its residents.

The pandemic rocked the creative and cultural industries to the core, but the unprecedented support from Government and the Combined Authority means that we will be able to recover quickly and to achieve greater reach than before. Were it not for the £24 million Culture Recovery Fund, distributed through Arts Council England, and the £2 million allocated by the West of England Combined Authority to support creative talent in the region, we would be facing years of slow and painful recovery.

To deliver culture for people and the economy in the West of England, we have developed this Cultural Plan, which sets out themes for strategic focus and a series of ambitious proposed initiatives to deliver on these themes.

We work on a set of simple premises – that our region needs to be at the forefront of economic growth and taking a lead in solving the great problems of the day; that this will be accomplished by the best and most creative people from all backgrounds and cultures; that the West of England needs to both attract and grow such people in order to thrive; and that culture is a central means of accomplishing this. The Cultural Compact will align resource to deliver this vision in the region and the Cultural Plan is an overview of the richness we build on and our intentions for future growth.

Professor Sue Rigby, Chair of the West of England Cultural Compact

“This region is a magnet for the creative industries. It has never been so vibrant in the South West. Innovative companies and people surround us, and it feels exciting to be here. It feels like a hub for creativity and business, where we can draw on the skills of other creatives in the area. It makes things easier and feels supportive.”

Mark and Lisa, founders of Plenderleith Scantlebury, specialists in art fabrication, mould making and casting experts

CULTURAL COMPACTS

Cultural Compacts are for the “co-creation and co-delivery of an ambitious vision for culture in a place” (Arts Council England).

The creation of Cultural Compacts was a key recommendation of the UK Cultural Cities Enquiry, an independent enquiry into the cultural resources of Britain’s cities, aimed at developing new models that will help arts and culture thrive in our cities.

Cultural Compacts are partnerships designed to support the local cultural sector and enhance its contribution to development, with a special emphasis on cross-sector engagement beyond the cultural sector itself and the local authority.

The West of England Cultural Compact was the only Arts Council England supported pilot cultural compact with a regional remit, embracing the diversity of our culture and creativity, our residents and businesses, our cities and communities.

CULTURE, CREATIVITY AND THE WEST OF ENGLAND

CULTURE, CREATIVITY AND THE WEST OF ENGLAND

The West of England is home to the world famous cities of Bristol and Bath, which are complemented by the rich cultural and industrial heritage of South Gloucestershire, coastal heritage of North Somerset, and vibrant and diverse communities and outstanding natural landscapes. With a population of over 1.1 million, it is a place where talented people work, ideas flourish and businesses grow.

We are an economic leader with an economy worth over £35 billion a year. We have one of the highest rates of employment in the country (79%), and over 45,000 businesses; the West of England competes on a global scale.

The West of England is 'globally significant, high-growth creative cluster' (2018 Creative Industries Sector Deal). We are a region where creative, digital and high tech meet traditional industry and heritage.

Creativity and the economy

The UK creative industries are a major economic force, contributing over £100 billion to the UK economy each year. The creative sector is one of the fastest growing industrial sectors in the UK, growing five times faster than the national economy.

Regionally, the value of creative industries in the South West has increased by 27% since 2010, with significant growth in the West of England.

The region is internationally recognised as a powerhouse for innovation and invention, with the most productive digital cluster in the UK. Our creative businesses contribute around £2bn to the regional economy each year. We have the most productive digital cluster in the UK and over 800 million people each month watch digital content produced in Bristol and Bath.

Skills and employment

Our cultural and creative sector employs 50,000 people and is home to nearly 7,000 businesses. We are home to a talented and skilled workforce, with a strong mix of independent freelancers, creative studios and high-tech incubators.

Four world-class universities, a network of colleges and training centres all contribute to a highly skilled pool of innovative and exciting artists and creators. Programmes including creative workforce for the future are nurturing the talents in our communities, supporting inclusive growth for the sector.

Culture across our communities

Our region is home to cultural assets of global significance that define the quality of place and play a crucial role in economic performance, community cohesion and wellbeing.

Established cultural institutions with international reach and recognition work collaboratively with emerging and rising talent to champion the creative and nurture the independent spirit.

REGIONAL RECOVERY

2019 was a record year for international visits into the region, breaking the milestone of 1 million international staying trips for the first time. Bristol and Bath featured in the top 12 destinations in the UK.

Sadly, the coronavirus pandemic has had a significant impact on business and workers across the cultural ecology in the West of England, as it has across the country. Businesses in culture, tourism and hospitality have been particularly affected by restrictions on operations and requirements for social distancing. These businesses are some of the last to recover income streams while being at the forefront of demand to rebuild community, society and cohesion.

Impact of Covid-19

In 2020, over 70% of the arts, entertainment and recreation workforce in the West of England had been furloughed according to a survey by the Office for National Statistics. At the height of the pandemic, cultural organisations made between 30% and 70% of their workforce redundant. The number of vacancies being advertised fell by over 50% between March and April 2020.

The region's visitor economy experienced a £700m loss of revenue (March to June 2020), with an estimated 56% drop in hotel room sales and a 62% drop in footfall to visitor attractions.

Response to the pandemic

The region's Metro Mayor, Dan Norris, working with local leaders and organisations has led the response to the impacts of the Covid-19 pandemic with a range of new measures. This included doubling the value of the regional recovery fund to channel support to small creative businesses and freelancers. This support will ensure we remain the location of choice for cultural and creative industries.

Culture and Creative Economy Recovery Fund

This £2m investment fund has been established alongside £300,000 Creative Scale-Up funding from the Department for Digital, Culture, Media & Sport. It offers a £800,000 business support programme (including continuation of the Creative Scale Up programme) and a £1.3m grant fund for SMEs across the West of England Combined Authority working in the creative industries.

The Creative Scale-Up programme has so far supported over 70 businesses to grow through expert mentoring, business development grants and a facilitated programme of peer-to-peer support.

Since June 2021, the investment fund has supported creative businesses (including freelancers) to reformulate their operating and financial models, explore new business opportunities and review business plans in response to Covid-19. Delivered across two strands of activity, this funding has made nearly 400 individual interventions, in the form of either a grant or business support.

PLACEMAKING

Embedding a rich and equitable cultural offer is central to healthy, happy, thriving communities and to building the character and distinctiveness of place that makes people want to visit, work, and live in the West of England.

Investment in culture drives productivity and employment and contributes to the regeneration of areas and revitalisation of our high streets. It helps to bring communities together – opening up new perspectives, encouraging participation in civic life.

WE WILL:

- place culture at the centre of placemaking, community-making and regeneration strategies
- ensure that the value of cultural investment is promoted and understood by local and regional government and business

OUR PROPOSED INITIATIVES:

- Cultural Infrastructure Toolkit and Charter, and Cultural Value campaign
- Maximising our region's Cultural Hubs and Assets
- Regional Sustainable Living Centre¹ and ancillary Sustainable Living Hubs
- Immersive Digital Experience
- Working with partners to create a coherent and compelling narrative for the West of England
- Regional Mega-Event

OUR COMMITMENT TO CULTURE AND CREATIVITY

♥ WELLBEING

Culture is an essential part of a life well lived. Arts and culture-based interventions offer new and surprising ways to promote the health and wellbeing of communities and to help them flourish and grow.

Participation in culture is a fundamental human right, as outlined in Article 27 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

The initiatives under this focus area seek to unlock the potential of culture to transform the lives of people in the West of England who are most at risk of social exclusion, as well as wider communities.

WE WILL:

- ensure that all residents and visitors can access culture and cultural activities for their own wellbeing, development, and enrichment
- put culture at the heart of happy, thriving, and healthy communities

OUR PROPOSED INITIATIVES:

- Strategic support for social prescribing
- Arts and Homelessness Civic Plan
- Widening access to culture, including:
 - Targeting specific barriers for groups and communities
 - Disabled Access Support
 - Supporting libraries to deliver cultural experiences

OUR COMMITMENT TO CULTURE AND CREATIVITY

Our three cross-cutting themes are:

ENVIRONMENTAL SUSTAINABILITY

We will support cultural initiatives that promote changes in behaviour and contribute to accelerating our transition to Net Zero Carbon.

DIGITAL TECHNOLOGY AND INNOVATION

We will support activity that further cements and amplifies the region's position as the UK's engine for digital and creative innovation.

INCLUSION

A focus on engaging and creating pathways into culture and the wider creative industries including target groups underrepresented within the sector and those affected by the Covid-19 pandemic.

THE WEST OF ENGLAND CULTURAL COMPACT

The purpose of the West of England Cultural Compact is to focus and amplify the role of culture in the region, as a driver for economic success, placemaking, community cohesion and personal wellbeing.

Culture can be harnessed to support individuals, communities, and businesses to thrive – this is the role of the West of England Cultural Compact. We will

- work to understand and support the cultural ecosystem of the region
- promote policies and practice that regard culture as central to the purpose of local and regional government, business and community groups
- influence and attract funding for cultural activities in the region
- ensure that the value of culture is promoted, and that the value of investment in culture is evaluated and publicised
- link cultural ambitions with wider regional agendas to amplify impact
- develop a plan for culture in the West of England.

The approach of the West of England Cultural Compact recognises that cultural provision across the region is not equally distributed and that the West of England is a diverse ecology of communities, geography and infrastructure. We also recognise the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic on the cultural ecology and workforce across the West of England, with cultural and creative freelancers and SMEs amongst those most affected.

The West of England Cultural Compact will play a convening and coordinating role, drawing on the density and strengths of our existing networks, evolving good practice models and supporting opportunities to share knowledge and approaches, and to direct strategic investment and resource where it will have the greatest impact.

WORKING TOGETHER

In looking forward to a prosperous future for the region we will work with the cultural and creative sector and a breadth of wider sector stakeholders to build on the strategic priorities of our great region.

We will balance recovery measures with longer-term strategic ambition, which includes the priorities of Metro Mayor Dan Norris to put the West of England on the map for national and global success whilst ensuring the ongoing resilience of culture in the region and the creation of decent jobs and training opportunities.

Together we will develop, and deliver, our West of England Cultural Plan.

“The Creative Scale Up programme is brilliant; in that it brings arts organisations together – people at a similar stage in their careers and company development – with an opportunity to share best practice and the problems that we’re facing,”

Luke Jerram, artist

“The best thing about the region is the good skills set in the sector which allows you to grow employees. There’s opportunity to network and talk with others plus excellent support systems and great creative facilities.”

Pascal Hughes, Founder and Director, Noiser podcast company
